A MERTING of the County was held here this day, and having taken under their confideration an advertifement from the Connidioners of Excise, of a8th vite, asleting 1st. That it is not true, it had been asset for the Evant of the Granaus, in focus of the Francis of the Francis of the Francis called upon to intrude once more upon the notice of the Public.

The Meeting lufit with some considence, that the Hon. Board, while they take the liberty of stamping historical led upon to intrude once more upon the notice of the Public.

The Meeting lufit with some considence, that the Hon. Board, while they take the liberty of stamping historic on the foregoing affection, have in fact admitted, what is of itself quite sufficient in vindication of the Committee. For they allow that the license law, though first proposed and adopted by the Legislature as an experiment, was originally suggested by the male two stamping they close, for the Committees of Excise, to make this attack, is left with an impartial public.

But let the suggestion of this law have come from what quarter it may, its vast utility by a twelve years experience has now been fully ascertained, which leads the Meeting to consider the Second assertion of the Commissioners— That it is a qually informed in fast, as bad also sees fasted by the Farmers, if that the Diffillery Reviews has shown in the second amount of the distillery duties, till Scotch souther the annual amount of the distillery duties, till Scotch souther.

The Commissioners and Farmers differ not with regard to the annual amount of the distillery duties, till Scotch spirits were first introduced to the English market. The Committee asserted, that the distillery duty in Scotland did not exceed 8000l. per annum, until the year 1778 or 2779, when the partice of sending spirits from Scotland to England sirst consistenced. The Commissioners have not resuted this affertion, stateon notice of the duty for any one year, until the year ending 5th July 1778, when they say the duty amounted to 94731. 132, 34. But they studied by a first began to be sent to England.

ing 5th July 1778, when they fay the duty amounted to 9451 153 3t. But they fludiously avoid to mention, that is was during that period, that spirits began to be sent to England.

The Meeting cannot, help complaining of the method taken by the Commissioners of Excise to missed the Public, and on throw odium upon the samers, having, to serve their purpose, most improperly, on the one hand, previous to the commencement of the license ask, given the whole amount of duties paid on spirits in Scotland, as if totally consumed there, although the greatest part of them were sent to, and consumed in England—while, on the other hand, after passing of the license law, they have carefully kept out of public view, not only the equalizing duties on Scotch spirits fren ro and consumed in England, but also the whole duties paid by the Highland district.

The Farmers cannot be supposed to be particularly informed of the exact amount of each year's duties; but to show that there is no sruch in the averment of the Excise, of a rapid prografive rise, while the Distillery remained under survey, they beg leave to extract the following part of a report of the Consumitee of the House of Commons on this subject. "It is an "undoubted fact, that in the three years preceding 5th July 1733, there were fant from Scotland by permit since ling—land 437,613 gallons of British smatt spirits, the enginal or Scotch duties charged and paid theron amounted to $4,6531.

19a. 24.5 hessis of per gallon, with soit, sod 131, per cent. thereon, amounting to 14,6591 1s. 9t. in consequence of their begins of the decided amounted to 12,3791, 94d." From this statement therefore it appears, that the dust sensitive confirms the sensity of the product of the profess to light and any of the land of the power 1786, the avowed production of the profess to light of Excise, in which there appears the following flatement:

"That the quantity of corn spirit sent from Scotland to Racilland and the fast of the first which had been charged with duty in Scotland, there ha

"Inter Meeting have had no opportunity of knowing the eract quantity of spirits sent to England, after the period spoken to by the Solicitor of Excise, till the passing of the licence law in the year 1786, but had the Commissioners thought proper to give the particulars, the farmers have good reason to believe, that the proportions would have been nearly similar.

The sarmers have next to take notice of the comparative smount of the duties while under survey, and when under the license law—And it will in the 18 place be particularly observed, that the duty previous to the 1st. November 1784, was 32 634, per gallon, and after that period, till the year 1785, was 23, 94, per spallon—While the licence duty of 303 commencing 5th July 1786, was accounted to be equal to only 6d.
per gallon. It will hardly be credited therefore, that under this low duty of 6d. per gallon, the annual duties levied for spirits consumed in Scalland alone, amounted, as the Commissioners themselves admit to 3,0001. exclusive of the Highland duties, being at least six times more than was received for the cubols of Scotland, at an average in the years 1781, 1782, 1783, and 1784, while they were levied under survey, and of which is particular account has been already given; and since the duties under the license law have been encreased, the sarmers stated, that the duties on spirits consumed in the subole of Scotland, amounted last year to 290,0001, this they did upon the authority

Lordships, a letter addressed to me from Captain Maincapture of the French privateer schooner La Defiree, by the boats of that thip, under the direction of Lieutegreat gallantry and good conduct.

I have the honour to be, &c. HENRY HARVEY. Evan Nepean, Efq. Hu Majesty's ship Babet, off Fort Royal Bay, Martinique, Jan. 17. 1798.

IT is with great pleasure I acquaint you, that Lieutenant Pym, of his Majesty's ship under my command, yesterday afternoon captured (in the pinnace, the launch following) after a most desperate resistance, the French Republican schooner La Desiree, mounting fix carriage guns, and having on board 46 men. I discovered her in the morning, half way between Martinique and Dominique, standing towards me; soon after the wind died away, and she, having made us out distinctly, took to her fweeps, and rowed off, which Lieutenan Pym observing, in the handsomest manner volunteered attacking her in the boats. To this I alone confented from the knowledge I had of his refolution and good conduct on somer occasions. I hope you will be of opinion that he merited the confidence placed in him, with every encomium I can bestow, when you know that the two boats contained but twenty-four men, that he was three leagues from the ship, and had been rowing four hours before he got within reach of their cannon, from which they kept up an inceffant firing till he boarded. He reports that the officers and men under him behaved with the greatest coolness and intrepidity. I am forry to add that we lost a very valuable seaman, and had sive wounded, amongst the latter a Mr Assiahurst, a young gentleman of very promising expectations, and a volunteer on the occasion. The enemy had three killed and fifteen badly wounded.

HIGH TREASON.

MAIDSTONE, APRIL II.

We were enabled in our last, by our Correspondent at Maidstone, to give a list of the Grand Jury, and a sketch of Justice Buller's Address to far as it went it was perfectly correct. We now present our readers with a complete copy.

Gentlemen of the Grand Jury, As we are convened here under a Commission which his Ma-"As we are convened here under a Commillion which his Majefly has been pleafed to appoint for special purposes, and not in the ordinary course of the administration of justice, it may naturally be expected that I should say something on the occasion of our assembling here;—to enable me to do to, I have no guide but the Commission which I hear for us; depositions are returned according to the universal practice of Courts of Justice in criminal proceedings; probably that has arisen from the circumsance of the indictment for High Treason being, as is usually the case, prepared by the Others of the Crown, and not cumitance of the sindictment for Fign Treation being, as it is faully the cafe, prepared by the Officers of the Crown, and not by those of the Court. In many cases the returns may be very useful; because it is as material in Treason as it is in Felony, that the Court should see the depositions, to enable them the better to point out the grand seatures of the case, to present to your consideration the facts and circumstances that are most effectial for your cample your attention to when you come to consider for you to apply your attention to, when you come to confide the effect and the bearing of the evidence.

the effect and the bearing of the evidence.

"At prefent, however, I know nothing of the circumstances of the matter that are to be laid before you, except that the offence charged to be inquired into is High Treason; and therefore I can only lay down the law upon that subject from the best authorities, as they are to be found in our books, accompanied with a few observations, with a hope that some of them may be of use. If they should be applicable to the case that shall appear before you, they will be applied as they shall defermed.

authorities, as they are to be found in our books, accompanied with a few observations, with a hope that fome of them may be of use. If they should be applicable to the case that shall appears before you, they will be applied as they shall deserve to be; and if, in the course of the proceedings, any question should arise in your minds on which you desire information, you will be pleased to apply to us, and the Court will be ready to give you every affishance in its power.

"Our inquiries, as appears by our Commission, are to be confined to High Treason, and Misprision of Treason. It was the happiness of this country, for a feries of years, to be almost strangers to the crime of Freason, until new principles and opinions were adopted in France, which have unfortunately misled the minds of unthinking people, and which were broached by the discontented in this country, who have pursued some means which tend to the introduction of the same kind of anarchy and consustion which lately prevailed in France.—Successful as those opinions have been in France, and extensive as has been their influence, they cannot make way in the minds and affections of the steady and the Cober part of the people of this country; he cause our Constitution shews us, that men may, with us, live happy, if they please; and the law, shews equal protection, from the highest to the lowest, to all the members of our community. In the present state of our Constitution and Government, we have nothing to fear from power and authority; for the Civil Magistrate can act only on the advice, but such as the law of the realm sanctions. We have full security for our freedom; for no law can be enasted which will not render every member of the Legislatore liable to its effect as well as the pourest subject in the realm; and the law, while it restrains vice, is also the security of virtue. There is not, in this country, one rule or measure of action for the rich, and another for the poor; both are equally governed by the law; every grievance which a man feels, paired by the law.

"It is in this fystem of human society that true and valuable equality consists. Difference of rank and station is the certain effect of such a system; men by superior talents and superior application, excel their neighbours; and virtue itself would be est without one of its happiest incentives, if the prudent and industrious were put upon a footing with the dissipated and the idls. It may perhaps seem strange to some, that a number of men should wish to adopt another form of Government, but it was the observation of a very wise man, that "he who goes and tells the multitude that they are not governed as they ought and tells the multitude that they are not governed as they ought to be, will never want hearers." The reason for it is a very plain one; the secrets that belong to a Government, the difficulties and perplexities of it are great, and almoit innumerable they are also, many of them at least, inevitable, and the people at large have not sufficient judgment to consider duly of these s. Among these disadvantages, that are inseparable from which indeed has been done, by dwelling upon imperfectious which are infeparable from every human fyltem, and by impuring all the evils which happen to a flate to the general corruption of its rulers; by which artifice the people are taught, that they ought for their own fafety, to take the Government into their own hands. They would do well to confider, whether any change of Government could ferve them. They would do well to remember that Government could ferve them. ent could ferve them. They would do well to remember, that Government, even if Monarchy were no part of it, must from the nature of the thing, soon fall into the hands of a few, and the tondition of the mass of the people must always remain the same. Under our present system, we see daily that private individuals, by the due and diligent application of their talents, acquire large sortunes, and obtain the highest ranks and shonours; of the truth of this, the instances are numerous in every department. But are the second are numerous in every department. highest ranks and honours; of the truth of this, the instances are numerous in every department. But as no state ever did nor ever could satisfy all descriptions of men, we have had, and we still have, those who are discontented. One man thinks his merits are neglected, and imputes the fault to the Government under which he lives, although in truth he may over-rate his value. Others have brought themselves to indigence or embarrassment by their own imprudence, and conceive that a general change of things will better their condition; such a description of men look to superly and confusion as the change of their reof men look to anarchy and confusion as the chance of their re

" In the due administration of the law, and the regular course in the due administration of the law, and the regular course of Government, they can hope for no advantage. They are in haste to better their condition; they therefore wish for that disorder in the state, by which they hope, but they vainly hope, to obtain, in a day, and on the sudden, that affluence and honour which is properly the reward only of a virtuous and a long life. Such men have existed, more or less numerously, at long life. Such men have extince, more or less numerounly, at all times; and it has been the policy of the law of England to check and to thwart their views. To guard against fuch turbulent spirits, the common law, and also the statutes, have bulent spirits, the common law, and also the statutes, have made various provisions. The ancient description of High Treason was, by the law of the land, the machinations of the heart in its disaffection to the Government; and the fault was shortly stated to be in the heart. But our ancestors said, most wisselve have a full-found of the state of the stat wifely, by a subsequent statute, that a man should not be con-victed of that crime for intention only; and therefore they di-rected, that there should be evidence of an overt act to manifest that intention, and that it should be charged in the indict-nient which is to contain the specific overt acts. This was hiberty of the subject; under it every man is fale who keeps himself within the bounds of a defined law.

"Of the different kinds of Treason described by" the statute of Edward III. I think it fufficient, for the prefent occasion, to of Edward III. I think it fufficient, for the prefent occasion, to felect only two: First, compassing or imagining the death of the Kings secondly, adhering to his enemies—giving them comfort within or without the realm. I have also to take notice of two more statutes upon this subject, which either may, or may not, be applicable to the subject which is to come before you.

Besides any immediate attack on the King's person, there are many other acts which have been holden to be proof of are many other acts which have been holden to be proof of confpiring against the King; such as sending letters, meeting conspiring against the King; such as sending letters, meeting and consulting; about the means to prove to the people that they ought to take the Government into their own hands. Any thing that necessarily tends to endanger the person of the King is an overt act of High Treason; and on this ground, consulting with foreigners on the means to procure an invasion of the kingdom—going abroad for that purpose, or with that intention—the mere hiring or taking a boat to go to France with intent to prevail on the enemy to invade this country—writing letters, conspiring or printing, in order to prevail on the people tion—the mere hiring or taking a hoat to go to raine intent to prevail on the enemy to invade this country—writing letters, confpiring or printing, in order to prevail on the people to take the Government into their own hands—have each of them been folemnly determined to be overt acts of High Treafon. They have been so determined by the greatest Judges that ever sat in Westminster Hall, and by some who are much results to the state of the stat nowned for their attachment to the liberty of the fubject, of whom my Lord Holt was one, and who, a very confiderable part in bringing about the revolution in this

"Adhering to the King's enemies is to be defined and prowed by any act which tends to firengthen the enemies of the King, or to weaken his hands. The fending money or intelligence, with intent to be conveyed to the enemy, although neither such money nor such intelligence ever arrive into the hands of the enemy, is High Treason. The reason is plain—the party, in such case, has done all he could. His evil intentions are manifelted by his actions, and the Treason is perfect, although the mischief never took effect. Another point to be observed is, that in treason there are no accessing are principals. with intent to be conveyed to the enemy, alt The act of one person, in pursuance of the orders of another provided the design be treasonable, is the act of all who are concerned in the intention. All, in such case, are expansi-

"Indictments for High Treason generally run into consider able length; because, after stating the necessary forms of law they state all the facts which are intended to be established by evidence, as a proof of the general intention. These facts are called in law "Overt Acts;" but, although many such acts are charged in the indictment, and are not proved, yet if one are charged in the indickment, and are not proved, yet if one of them, being material, be fatisfactorily proved, that is fufficient to support the indickment.

"The statute of the 33d year of the present reign is next to be taken notice of. It is an act for more effectually preventing Traitorous Correspondence, or aid or affistance being given to his Majeth's enemies during the present war with France.—By it, it is enacted, "That, during the war, if any person residing or being in Great Britain, shall, knowingly and wilfully, on his own account or credit, or on the account or credit, or by the or being in Great Britain, shall, knowingly and wilfully, on his own account or credit, or on the account or credit, or by the direction of any other person or persons whomsoever, or where-soever resident, buy, fell, supply or deliver, or send for the purpose of being sold, supplied or delivered, or shall, knowingly or wilfully, either on his own account, or on the account or credit, or by the direction of any other person or persons whomsoever, or wheresoever resident or being, cause or procure it to be fold supplied or delivered, or authorise or direct any other person or persons whomsoever, or wheresoever resident or being, to send, the stillers or to find for the nursus of heiner sold, son fupplied or delivered, or authorife or direct any other person or persons whomsover, or wheresover resident or being, to send, supply or deliver, or to send for the purpose of being sold, supplied or delivered, or shall, knowingly and wilfully, aid and affish in so selling, supplying, or in authorising to sell, supply, &c. or to send for the purpose of being sold, supplied, &c. to or for the nife of the persons now exercising the power of Government in France, or who may exercise the power of Government in France during the present war, or for the use of any armies, troops, &c. posselsed by such persons, &c. or of any person residing in France during such war, &c. or to any town, territory, troops, &c. policified by fuch persons, &c. or of any person refi-ding in France during such war, &c. or to any town, territory, port or place annexed to France, &c. or, knowingly and wisfully, buy or procure, or aid and assist in buying and procuring, any arms, ordnance, &c. or shall send any note of the Bank of Eng-land, bill, or any gold and silver coin, &c. of this kingdom, or of any other country; or any other article of clothing, &c. without the license of his Msjesty, under his sign manual, or order in Council, or Proclamation; such person so sending, &c. shall be declared a traitor, and shall suffer death, as in case of High Treason."

Treason."

"Another act was passed in the 33d year of the present reign, intitled "An act for the Sasety and Preservation of his Majesty's Person and Government against Treasonable and Seditious Practices and Attempts," by which it is enacted, "That is any person, &c. shall, within the realm or without, compass insigned, invent, device, or intend death or defruction, or any bodily harm tending to death or defruction, maining, wounding, impriforment, or reftraint of the King's person, his beirs or fucceffors, or to deprive or depose him or them from the flyle, honour or kingly name of the Imperial Crown of this realm, or a new other or the instance of the statement of honour or kingly name of the Imperial Crown of this realm, or of any other of his Majefty's dominions or countries; or to levy war against his Majefty, his heirs or successors within this realm, in order by force, or confirmint to compel him or them to change his or their measures or councils, or in order to put any force or reftraint upon, or to intimidate or overawe both Houses, or either House of Parliament; or to move or stir any foreigner or stranger to invade this realm, or any other his Majesty's dominions or countries under the obeliance of his Majesty, his heirs or successform and such compassions, imaging inverse inventors. heirs or fuccessors, and such compassings, imaginings, tions, devices or intentions, which they or any of them neits or fuccetiors, and fuch compatings, imaginings, inventions, devites or intentions, which they or any of them shall express, utter or declare, by publishing any printing or writing, or by any overt act or deed, being legally convicted thereof upon the oaths of two lawful and creditable witnesses, &c. then every fuch person so a storedaid offending shall be adjudged a traitor, and shall be guilty of High Treason."

"Such is the substance of these modern acts: Whether they have more affirmants of the companions or whether they

be mere affirmants of the common law, or whether they flate such acts to be Treason as were not such before these statutes, is not a point necessary to be now discussed. The principle of the bills is only following up that which has been often held to be Treason; and as there might have been some doubts entertained by some, the Legislature acted wisely in making the law plain and clear to the meants canacity.

Bills of indictment for High Treason have been sound against all the prisoners—namely, Mess. O'Connor, Binns, Quigley, Alleyn, and Mr. O'Connor's servant Leary. The Ceurt adjourned to the 30th inst. when they will be arraigned.

The Counsel for the Crown are, the Attorney and Solicitor General, Mr Adam, Mr Garrow, and others. Those who are to conduct the defeace of the prisoners have not yet been named; though Messrs. Scott, Fergusion, and Guerney attended the Court on their behalf.

We understand that the evidence which Mr Erskine may give in favour of Mr'O'Connor is thought, by the friends of the latter Gentleman to be of fo much confequence, that they intend to forego the manifest advantages which the accused might derive from the splendid talents and unrivalled eloquence of this derive from the fplendid talents and unrivalled eloquence of this eminent advocate, in order to have the benefit of his testimony —testimony which, it should seem, consistently with the etiquette of the bar, he could not give so advantageously for the prisoner, were he employed as Counsel to defend him.

MAIDSTONE, THURSDAY, APRIL 12.

This morning at eight o'clock the State prisoners vere had up to the bar at our Court-house, the Judges Buller, Heath, and the Lord Lieutenant of the county being feated on the bench.

Judge Buller, with great folemnity, acquainted the prisoners that a Grand Jury of the county had found a hill against them for High Treason, a copy of which should be given them; that he should adjourn the mient which is to contain the specific overt acls. This was a wise and humane law, for by it the accused learns what it is he is to defend. In this exists the soundation of our law of Treason, as it has been understood for ages; by it our ancestors preserved to their posserity the satety of the realm, and the you engaged Counsel?"

my, how they clud mited ftr We ha Wednesday, at two o'clock, pursuant to sua issued on the preceding evening at a late hour, a Cabinet Council was held at Lord Grenville's office, Down gun-boars ing street, at which most of the Cabinet Ministers, and other Members, were prefent; at half past four a me the comm of war, fi fenger was fent off from the Duke of Portland's office with the refult to the King at Windfor-Lodge.

In confequence of a letter fent on Wednesday by Mr Secretary Dundas to the Lord Mayor, to know This will what volunteer corps, besides the militia, were at pr fent raised in the city of London, for the defence of the fent raised in the city of the Alderna country, his Lordthip held a meeting of the Alderna vafforday at the Mansion House. We understand the We le ult. the g mading feedy de to make I requilitions are to be immediately iffued to invite volu-teers in every Ward to incorporate themselves in a body for the above purpofe.

The Lord Mayor held a Wardmote yesterday, at & the exige Michael's Crooked-lane, for the election of an Alder that he m man for Candlewick Ward, in the room of Thoma Wright, Efq. deceased; when Peter Perchard, Efq. was unanimously chosen.

Yesterday the body of Mr Mellish was brought to towa, previous to interment. His head was opened by the furgeons after his death, but no ball was to be found. It is supposed to have dropped out shortly & ter he was wounded. The brain had received a rep violent contusion.

General Hompesch's foreign corps, which has ben tol per for some time in the Isle of Wight receiving recruit theuse from abroad, have failed for Ireland.

A morning paper fays, "We prefume only to fpel on conjecture when we fay—that we have reason to French believe the object of the Council's meeting was to confider of the propriety of recommending a general arms of the people, by forming affociations in every diffic ing, fro By p of the kingdom; the time of exercise to be so appoin ed as to interfere as little as possible with the tions of those who are engaged in business, but who still anxious to shew their zeal in the defence of the We are fure that this information will be very country reeable to many perfons who are anxious to fee Dundas's bill carried into the fullest effect. When ve confider the description of enemy we have to conte against, and that he employs every active principle which man is capable of to carry his fystem of diforganization and plunder into effect, there is no person, who ough to shew a reluctance in arming for the general defence, and, as we know that example is better than precept, per-fons in the highest ranks should function this measure by their personal attendance. Unless such an example thewn, we fear it will be difficult to engage the inferior orders of fociety to lend their affiltance. Their are not times for the rich citizen or the opulent manufacture to look on as indifferent spectators to what is now palfing in Europe.

"Although this measure of a general arming has probably been long under confideration, we are led a think that it has been hastened by the accounts which Government has received within the last few days from of who France. It is not merely at Brest and at Havre when the preparations of invalion are in the greatest forward ness, but the same activity is employed in almost every port of France and Holland, from Rochefort to the Texel. At Havre, where the greatest number of gus boats are building, the foldiers were called out of the beds twice last week, during the most tempestuous westher, to the exercise of manœuvring with cannon is and out of these boats, as if they were actually prepar ing to land in this country. Th is was done in order to render the men accustomed and expert this kind of exercife, as well as to conceal the seri-moment when they may really be called upon to en bark on the expedition against England. The best is formation confirms the opinion that the French will ca deavour to carry their views into effect by a coup of main. The powers granted to Buonsparte, as our reders will fee by the late arreté of the Directory, are of the most unlimited and extensive nature, as he has the entire command of this expedition both by fea and land The French have enforced the requisition in Holland of every fifth man.

" It is perfectly true that his Majesty intends to hoist the Royal Standard in the camp about to be marked out near Windsor, in which neighbourhood very large magazines of flour are now forming, fo as to sup ply the environs of the metropolis in case the enemy defect a landing in either of the adjacent counties lying near the fea, by which there might be a momentary is terruption to the communication with the port of London.

Two Hambugh mails arrived on Thursday.

A letter from Oltend, of a recent date, received by Danish vessel, says, "A very curious plan of a flying bridge for boarding has been presented to the Director by an Englishman, whose projectile force is commu ted by fleam. It is a fact which may be depended upon, that at this time, when the Directory are publicly proferibing Bri-tish manufactures, they give a bounty of no less than 10l per cent. on all British scarlet cloths imported for theuse of the armies. It is obvious, that this must be done in the hopes of being able to clothe a part of the French army in the fame manner as our troops, and thus to occasion a confusion in the event of their landing, from which they may expect to derive fome advan-

It is now certain that General Buonaparte will not return to the Congress. He has recalled his Secretary of Legation, and his Adjutant, Citizen Perret and Val He has fent dispatches to Citizen Treilhard, as also the presents for signing of the treaty of Campo Formio. Count Cobenzel receives a watch and chain fet with diamonds; and Count Meerfeldt, Baron De gelman, the Secretaries, &c. other rich presents. The Austrian presents will be sent to Paris.

It has been afferted in some of our Gazettes, that negociations for a peace between England and France have been opened at Vienna, under the mediation of Baron Thugut; but that they foon terminated, like those set on foot at Paris in 1796, and those at Liste in 1797.-It is faid here, that the French will foon advance to enforce their plans of fecularization and in demnification, should circumstances require it.

The town of Terni, in the Duchy of Spoletto, has fuffered a calamitous fate. The inhabitants rofe against the French in a mass, and cut in pieces all who fell into their hands; but General d'Allemagne, who commanded at Rome, fent a body of troops against them, who foon defeated them, and the town was given up to be plundered.—The Pope observes the strictest incog nito at Siena; he however, receives all the honours due to his rank: The Grand Duke offered him a coach and fix fine horses, with other prefents; but he refused

It is now politively confirmed that the French fleet of 14 ships of war, which failed from Corfu, is arrived at Syracuse in Sicily, and that 18 other ships have arrived at Messina and Trapani. These sleets have 6000 troops on board. Some affirm that the French are to occupy these harbours, in consequence of a secret article in the treaty between France and Naples : Others are of opinion, that the French fleet from Sicily will join that at Toulon, and fail for Cadiz.

Saavedra, Minister of Finance, and as Command ant of the Guards the Marquis Ruchena unconditionally. It is reported that the successor of the Prince of Peace will be the Chevalier d'Azzara, lately appointed Ambassador to France. His well known principles will confolidate the good understanding between France and Spain, which might have been disturbed if the Prince of Peace had remained at the head of affairs. It is thought the retreat of the Prince of Peace is not difagreeable to the Directory, who are faid to have fulpected him of trimming too much with England, or even conceiving the delign of a reconciliation fooner or later with that power. M. Saavedra, the temporary fuccessor of the Prince of Peace, is simily attached to what is called the French party.

EDINBURGH-APRIL 16.

In the foregoing columns of this paper our Readers will find fome very interesting intelligence, among which may be ranked a very important piece of service performed by Sir Richard Strachan, who, with only two frigates, the Diamond and Hydra, attacked 38 gun-boats full of troops, one of which was funk, and the others were driven among the shoals at Port in Besin.

Advices from France continue to inform us that the Directory are fixed in their determination to attempt the invalion of Britain. The most active preparations are making for carring this into effect. But we must also add, that in Britain similar exertions are making, which we have no doubt will be fully fufficient to repe the foe, even admitting they were to make good their landing. The vigilance of our cruizers, however, gives us no ground to believe they will ever be able to effect this. Lord BRIDPORT has put to fea, and there are numerous frigates hovering all along the coast of France, ready to give the earliest intelligence in case the enemy should leave their ports.

Regarding domestic intelligence we may remark, that his affociates, by the Grand Jury at Maidstone, where the trials will proceed the 30th instant.—A complete copy of the Judge's Address to the Grand Jury will be found in a preceding column.

DUBLIN, April 12.

Tuesday night, about nine o'clock, a young man, named Terence Sheel, was found murdered in Dame-street. A coroner's inquest sat upon the body next morning, who brought in a verdict of wilful mur der against a person or persons unknown. The wound which occasioned his death, was given him under the left shoulder blade, by a small sword, (not with three corners,) which penetrated his heart. Next day Lord CHARLES FITZGERALD, having got reason to suspect Lieut. J —, of the Fermanagh Militia, who was u-pon the patrole that night in Dame-street, had him arrested, but he found means afterwards to escape .-Every exertion is making to apprehend him.

BY JACKSON, DRIGINAL DINTMENT.

PREPERD only by JAs. BARCLAY, (late T. Jackson)
No. 95. Fleetmarket, London, where it has been prepared and sold for upwards of fifty years. It cures annually fifteen thousand persons, and was never known to fail.

It does not contain the least particle of Mercury, or any other pernicious ingredient, and may be used with safety by women with child, and infants newly born, and is not disgreeable in its shavour. Its safety and dispatch is fully manifelted by the Faculty adopting it in their private practice, which several of the most reputable have done for many years.

It becomes particularly necessary to caution those who are affilided with the above distemper against imposition, as several unprincipled men have substituted their own pernicious trash (whose basis is Mercury) in its stead, and, taking advantage of the death of Mr Jackson, have put his name to their preparation.—You will therefore observe, as you regard your health, that the name of Y. Barclay is wrote on the stamp (affixed to each box) without which it cannot be genuine.—Price Is. 9d. each box.
